

Abstract

Film compositions are described which can be used as conductive, resistive or insulating films in a wide variety of electronic and light electrical components. Said films comprise a conductive phase based on pyrochlore-related compounds, and a dielectric phase based on glass.